October-November 2020 report

Strategic ministry opportunities continue. Many of the opportunities that were postponed in the past several months because of Covid-19 are now being rescheduled for 2021. Even though several international TEAM Mobile Seminary trips have been confirmed for the upcoming months in 2021, the timing of two of Dan's trips continue to be tentative because of the restrictions in those areas related to the countries' treatment of the coronavirus. We are cautiously optimistic regarding these upcoming opportunities to provide in-person theological and pedagogical training for national pastors throughout Latin America. Plans for 2022 have begun as well, which includes confirming a trip in which an evangelist with decades of pastoral experience will be traveling with Dan to teach a course.

Although we maintain local church Hispanic ministry when not traveling, opportunities to share with other congregations about TEAM Mobile Seminary have been limited. In October, however, we were able to put up our display during the missions conference of one of our supporting churches. Although we were not participants in the conference, it was great to reconnect before and after the services with many who have been praying for us. We plan to report to another supporting church later in November.

The lack of travel has not diminished our ability to minister long distance, and our past letters have communicated some of those unique opportunities. The Lord has provided us with even more opportunities to minister in unique ways. For example, in October, Dan was able to guest speak via Zoom in a cross-cultural missions course at Bob Jones University to thirty-one students. In November, from our office at home, Dan preached for the 40th anniversary celebration of a church in Spain.

In our last letter, we mentioned that Dan will teach a hybrid online course for a Christian institution in Mexico. In addition to that course, starting in January, Dan will teach a hybrid course to a group of church leaders in Spain. Also, Dan was invited to teach a virtual course in 2021 for a Bible college in yet another country. Teaching in different settings requires a significant amount of logistical preparation before courses are taught. We ask that you pray for Dan as he continues to prepare for these in-person international trips as well as these international virtual/hybrid online opportunities.

The Kids' Corner. As we write this update, Anna and Abby are wrapping up their last week of classes at BJU and are preparing for final exams for the semester!

Thank you for your prayers!
